WEATHER BY REGION:

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA:

A low over the Pacific Northwest will move a little further southward today and bring cooler temperatures and some cloudiness to northwestern California. Warmest inland areas will be right around seasonal normals today. There is a small chance of some light showers over the southern Cascades, mainly this afternoon and overnight. Moderately strong, gusty westerly afternoon winds will develop again today and will be especially noticeable near the coast and east of the Cascade/Sierra crest. Areas of low afternoon relative humidity (RH) are also expected east of the crest. A high pressure ridge will move over Northern California Tuesday night and continue moving across through Thursday. Afternoon temperatures inland will warm to about 5-7 degrees above normal with the lower and mid 90s inland.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

A trough with winds will also cause temperatures to be around 5 degrees below normal through Tuesday, with 60s to low 70s in the mountains and mid 70s to upper 80s in the valleys. Minimum humidity will be mainly between 15% and 30% away from the deserts, which will range from 8% to 15%. Morning low clouds and fog will push into most coastal valley locations through Tuesday. A ridge of high pressure will build northward out of Mexico bringing a gradual warming trend along with minimum humidity mainly in the teens away from the coast Wednesday through this weekend. Temperatures will be around 5 degrees above normal Friday through this weekend, with mid 90s over the warmer valley locations. Winds will be light Wednesday through this weekend and the marine layer will most likely only affect the coastal areas by Thursday.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

Situational Summary

On January 17, 2014 Governor Edmund G. Brown proclaimed a State of Emergency and directed state officials to take all necessary actions to prepare for drought conditions. The State Operation Center (SOC) is activated to implement objectives in support of the Governor's priorities. The lack of winter rain and snowfall has resulted in extremely dry conditions in many parts of the State. Reservoir levels are down significantly from where they should be on average for this time of year. If conditions continue without substantial rainfall, severe impacts to municipal water supplies, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities are likely in store for the State over the next few months. Negative economic impacts will also result.

**As our state's rainy season comes to an end, it is highly unlikely that precipitation totals will increase significantly. This winter's below average rain and snowfall worsens conditions in this third straight dry year.***

The drought could result in severe impacts to the municipal water supplies, wells, agriculture (plants and livestock) and firefighting capabilities for several months. The SOC continues to be activated to monitor the situation statewide, and support regional and local operational areas.

- The Taskforce continues to meet regularly to take actions that conserve water and coordinate state response to the drought.
- The final manual snowpack survey of the season was conducted on Thursday (May 1) and showed California snowpack at 18% of normal.
- DWR has announced that water essential for health and safety will be delivered through the state water project. The current State Water Project Allocation is 5%.
- Cal OES continues to gather drought-related costs from state agencies and local governments.
